THE CHARLES DARWIN TRUST

REPORT OF THE TRUSTEES FOR THE YEAR ENDED 31ST DECEMBER 2018

The Trustees who are also directors of the charity for the purposes of the Companies Act 2006, present their combined Directors' report and Trustees' annual report with the financial statements of the charity for the year ended 31 December 2018. The Trustees have adopted the provisions of Accounting and Reporting by Charities: Statement of Recommended Practice applicable to charities preparing their accounts in accordance with the Financial Reporting Standard applicable in the UK and Republic of Ireland (FRS 102) (effective 1 January 2015).

OBJECTS AND ACTIVITIES

The Trust was established to develop the use of the heritage of Charles Darwin the scientist, his scientific work and his life with his family and friends as an inspiration for learning about science and the natural world.

The objects of the Charity when it was launched in 1999 were the advancement of education in the United Kingdom and elsewhere in relation to:

- the life and work of Charles Darwin
- the development and understanding of natural history and the life sciences with particular reference to Darwin's home at Down House and to any associated institutions in the village of Downe in Kent, and
- the advancement of education and such other purposes for the benefit of the community as shall be exclusively charitable.

The aims of the Charity are:

- to use Darwin-Inspired Learning to promote excellence in science education
- to promote an understanding of the natural world to ensure the survival of biodiversity and life on earth
- to enhance the understanding of Darwin's historical and contemporary significance
- to improve and extend science literacy and the understanding of science.

The Trust has based its materials for teaching and its Continuing Professional Development (CPD) courses for teachers on research into Darwin's own writings and those of his contemporaries and collaborators and on current scholarship. Taking as its context Darwin's life, work and influence, the Trust has developed an approach to teaching and learning in science which it offers for use by educators as Darwin-Inspired Learning.

DARWIN-INSPIRED LEARNING

Darwin-Inspired Learning:

- encourages a sense of place and direct engagement with the natural world, such as the environments of Downe and other locations where Darwin worked, or through employing local environments which are accessible to students and their teachers.
- places importance on:
 - active learning through experiences and questions, solving problems, and dialogue between teachers and pupils, and between pupils themselves
 - teaching that engages critical and creative thinking about how scientists' work encourages interdisciplinary studies, with Darwin as the context, between science and literature, writing and expression, history, religious studies, geography, horticulture, dance and drama, design and technology, numeracy, music and art.

This is achieved through:

- using Darwin's ways of working and investigating
- using Darwin's theories about how nature works
- understanding how science and scientists use Darwin's ideas in their work today
- using stories about Darwin, the places where he worked and the things that he studied
- working with expert groups in the arts and humanities.

This approach is aimed at developing:

- young people who are engaged with the natural world as critical, imaginative investigators, who find science exciting, who have the ability to communicate their findings to others and who want to continue their studies
- teachers inspired by Darwin-Inspired Learning to become more effective and reflective
- a new generation of teachers and young people who are proud of the heritage that Charles Darwin gave to the world and understand its significance.

The Trustees have sought to develop resources that meet the requirements of the UK national curriculum, GCSE and post-16 courses. Many examination specifications expect pupils to carry out independent studies for which they have to collect and analyse data. Studying the natural world out-of-doors over a prolonged period and in great breadth and depth, allows students the opportunity to investigate and bring together data just as Charles Darwin did. However, fieldwork has greatly declined in recent years and teacher expertise to scaffold these activities has waned.

The Trustees believe in particular that teachers need support in developing their:

- teaching approaches for outdoor learning
- biological subject knowledge
- enthusiasm for the study of nature.

ACHIEVEMENT AND PERFORMANCE

ACTIVITIES IN 2018

The Trust has continued its support for English Heritage projects at Down House with uses for education about Darwin's science, its discussions with the Linnean Society about educational uses of their Darwin and Alfred Russel Wallace Collections, and its help for schools developing 'Darwin Gardens' on their premises using ideas set out in its book Darwin-Inspired Learning published in 2015 and in Professor Costa's book Darwin's Backyard published in 2017. In 2018 Professor Costa has continued to lecture on Darwin, his life and his experimental methods to major universities both in the United States and internationally.

The Wallace Correspondence Project (WCP) Phase 2 (2017-2020) has continued successfully following the Trust's agreement with the John Templeton Foundation in November 2017. Dr George Beccaloni, Head of the Project, has recruited full-time and freelance research staff and over sixty volunteers. During 2018, volunteers transcribed 660 letters and researchers produced corrected transcripts with scholarly endnotes for 155 letters. 356 letters (964 scanned pages) and other manuscripts new to the project were discovered in libraries and auction sales. By the end of the grant (August 2020) all of the 5376 letters that the project has will have rough (Level 1) transcriptions, and c. 500 will have carefully corrected (Level 2) transcriptions with scholarly endnotes which are suitable for publication. For the Charles Darwin Trust, the project has considerable educational potential with the close links between Wallace and Darwin as observers, experimenters and theorists for evolutionary science.

The doctoral research that has been supported by the Trust is nearing completion with submission of the thesis anticipated in 2019. The research focuses on the fundamental reasons why many individuals, specifically trainee teachers, find aspects of evolution to be deeply unsettling. Ultimately, this work will inform how teacher training and professional development can better support teachers to develop their understanding of people's feelings towards evolution, nature and our relationship to it. This is with a view to creating more inclusive and dialogic approaches to teaching and learning of this fundamental subject in science. A continuing collaboration through Emma Newall (whose Doctoral research this encompasses) with UCL Institute of Education is planned.

PUBLIC BENEFIT STATEMENT

The Trustees confirm that they have complied with the duty set out under section 17 of the Charities Act 2011 and have paid due regard to the Charity Commission's guidance on public benefit, 'Charities and Public Benefit', in developing the Trust's objectives for the year and in planning its activities.

FINANCIAL REVIEW

Reserves policy

The Trust maintains its reserves under two categories: (a) unrestricted (general) reserves, which are available for general use in pursuance of the charity's objectives, and (b) restricted reserves, which are for specifically earmarked purposes. Unrestricted reserves currently amount to £92,599.

The Trustees review the Charity's reserves policy on a regular basis and no less than annually. The reserves position is reported at every board meeting.

11. HERITAGE ASSETS

During 2003 the Trust received a legacy (the Quentin Keynes Bequest), which comprised rare manuscripts and books related to Charles Darwin's life and writings. A similar bequest from the estate of Richard Keynes was received in 2010. A bequest was also received from the estate of Milo Keynes in 2009. A donation of heritage assets amounting to £84,600 was also received in 2015.

Following a review, part of the Quentin Keynes Bequest was reclassified as an investment asset and was sold during 2015 together with the assets donated in 2015. Most of the remaining heritage assets were then transferred to another charity, the Linnean Society of London, to hold, under trust, for educational purposes. A number of the remaining assets remain with the Trust, most of them now on loan to English Heritage for display at Darwin's home, Down House in Kent.

Independent examiner's report to the trustees of The Charles Darwin Trust

I report to the charity trustees on my examination of the accounts of the Company for the year ended 31 December 2018.

Responsibilities and basis of report

As the trustees of the Company (and also its directors for the purposes of company law) you are responsible for the preparation of the accounts in accordance with the requirements of the Companies Act 2006 ('the 2006 Act'). You are satisfied that the accounts of the Company are not required by charity or company law to be audited and have chosen instead to have an independent examination.

Having satisfied myself that the accounts of the Company are not required to be audited under Part 16 of the 2006 Act and are eligible for independent examination, I report in respect of my examination of the Company's accounts carried out under section 145 of the Charities Act 2011 ('the 2011 Act'). In carrying out my examination I have followed the Directions given by the Charity Commission under section 145(5)(b) of the 2011 Act.

Independent examiner's statement

I have completed my examination. I confirm that no matters have come to my attention in connection with the examination giving me cause to believe that in any material respect:

1. accounting records were not kept as required by section 386 of the 2006 Act; or
2. the accounts do not accord with those records; or
3. the accounts do not comply with the accounting requirements of section 396 of the 2006 Act other than any requirement that the accounts give a 'true and fair view' which is not a matter considered as part of an independent examination; or
4. the accounts have not been prepared in accordance with the methods and principles of the Statement of Recommended Practice for accounting and reporting by charities applicable to charities preparing their accounts in accordance with the Financial Reporting Standard applicable in the UK and Republic of Ireland (FRS 102).

I have no concerns and have come across no other matters in connection with the examination to which attention should be drawn in this report in order to enable a proper understanding of the accounts to be reached.
